Unanimous Verdict
From our many articles the past few weeks received from various sources
it will be seen that the comedy farce,
"The Irish Pawnbroker," is a strictly first-class attraction with more originality and novel features than any company that has yet visited us. It remains to be seen how they will be appreciated.

SINNISSIPPI LINKS

Unusually Large Number of Visitors
Participated in the Weekly Club-
Day Festivities Yesterday.

Notwithstanding the broad hint of autumn in the atmosphere, there was an exceptionally large attendance yesterday at the Sinissippi Golf club weekly club-day events and festivities. The second series of matches in the ladies' putting tournament for special prizes were played with unusual vim, a large gallery watching every stroke and encouraging the contestants. Miss Wilma McGiffin defeated Mrs. H. G. Carter 5 up and 4 to play; Mrs. W. G. Wheeler won from Miss Isabelle Schaefer 1 up; Miss Helson Nash defeated Miss Josephine Treat 1 up; Miss Isabel Smith won from Mrs. M. G. Joffe 5 up and 4 to play; Mrs. H. S. McGiffin won from Mrs. Charles B. Bostwick 6 up; and Mrs. E. A. Kommerer won her match by forfeit. The winners will be matched for the semi-finals next Tuesday.

In the men's match play with handicaps H. S. McGiffin defeated Stanley Tallman 4 up and 3 to play; C. C.
MacLennan won from A. P. Burman 1 up; Frank Ellfeld defeated Al Schaefer 1 up; Fred Schaefer won from Orion Sutherland 3 up; J. L. Wilcox won by forfeit; and Burns Brower defeated H. G. Carter 3 up and 2 to play.

Sixty-five partook of the delicious supper served by Chef Lynch, certain of the "upgraded ones" acting as waitresses and waiters. Afterward, when the hall had been cleared and the near full moon hung like a golden platter over the old windmill, the best of the series of twelve successful dinners was ushered in. A. C. Bonfleur, the gifted entertainer, who has been acting as accompanist to Roy Carter for several seasons past, has been compelled by the duties of his new position as bookkeeper in the J. M. Bostwick & Sons store to give up his musical work. George V. Gray, an violinist, took his place last evening and the work of the re-organized orchestra proved very acceptable, indeed.

The presence of a large number of visitors materially added to the enjoyment of the evening program.
Among those present from out of town were: the Misses Mary and Gertrude McKee, Mrs. E. J. Tucker, and Miss Frances Jenkins of Chicago;
Mrs. C. H. Hemminger and Mrs. Eberett Barnes of Rockford; Miss Pearl
Thomas of St. Joseph, Mo.; Miss
Mabel Stevens of Evansville; Mrs. Orin
Bemis of Clinton, Ia.; Mrs. Foster of Cedar Rapids, Ia.; and Ward S.
Burby of Oak Park, Ill.

CITY SCHOOLS OPEN
SEPTEMBER THIRD

Old Portion of Jefferson Building Expected to be Ready For Use.

Tuesday, September third, has been set as the date for the opening of the Janesville public schools. If Monday, the second, were not Labor Day and a legal holiday, that would mark the inauguration of the new school year.
All the buildings are being put in condition, the repair work of the summer being brought to a close. The old portion of the Jefferson building, it is expected will be ready for service.
Contractor Cullen is rushing the work,
much to the satisfaction of the school commissioners. The seventy horse power boiler for the heating apparatus is in place and the remainder of the work will be done with all possible haste. The new wing will not be completed until January first. The will make it necessary for some third ward students to attend the Adams school in the second ward. How many will be thus inconvenienced it is not known but S. H. Buckmaster, president of the board of education, believes it will be less than a hundred.

PARKER PEN COMPANY
START DAMAGE SUIT

Siegel Cooper of Chicago Defendants in the United States Court in Chicago.

Suit has been commenced in the United States Federal Court in Chicago by the Parker Pen Company of this city with Siegel Cooper, the large dry goods firm of Chicago as defendants.
Two thousand dollars damages are asked for the defendants' advertising and offering for sale at cut prices the products of the local company. It appears that the Parker Pen Company recently sold a large number of pens to a large wholesale Chicago jobbing house. The Siegel Cooper company obtained possession of a number of these pens and placed them on sale at cut rates, advertising the sale extensively. Suit was brought under three patents and the hearings are before Court Commissioner Morse. Under the United States patent law the patentee can fix the price of his product, make contracts with the dealers so as to fix the prices at a definite standard and maintain a uniform price. It is under the complaint that these restrictions were violated that the local company has begun suit. Mr. Parker was in Chicago yesterday for the hearing and Mr. Gollner will go down tomorrow. Siegel Cooper are represented by Attorney A. Mings Wagner of the Parker Pen Company by Martin Tanner and Polk. The hearing will take several days before completed when the testimony will be presented to the judge for a decision.

Some dealers are invariably out of what you ask for and offer you a substitute which they claim is just as good. This dealer is working for his own profit. Go to the honest dealer, who will sell you what you ask for and not try to sell you a substitute in order to make a larger profit.

There are many reasons why you ask for advertised articles, but absolutely none why you should let a substituting dealer palm off something which he claims to be "just as good" or "better" or "the same thing" as the article you requested.

Advertised goods are the best—that is why substitutes are offered in place of them. Insist on having the best and you will get it.

The buying public recognizes the superior quality of advertised articles.
The substituter realizes that fact and tries to sell inferior goods on the advertiser's reputation.

Protect yourself by refusing substitutes.

BAND CONCERT AT COURT HOUSE PARK

Platform Was Set up on the North Side of the Park in Order to Save Grass in West End.

Owing to the fact that the grass in the west end of the Courthouse park had been badly trampled and some new sod had been put in, the bandstand was set up on the north side opposite the Woods flats last evening. A few, finding the platform missing in the usual place, went home disappointed before the open-air concert began but about 1,500 people enjoyed the excellent program discussed by the Imperial band.

REASON IS OUT.
While we are all boasting of expansion of foreign commerce, the unpopularity of American business enterprises and the increase in the naval strength, it is well to recall what Mrs.
Mary A. Livermore said to a Mothers' and Fathers' club some time ago—
"The advance of a nation comes through its homes, not through its battleships and corporations." We should all reflect on these words and remember that happy homes are the homes where good health and good food are found in abundance and that BEN HUR FLIGHT makes the finest bread, rolls and pastry in all the land.

ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH
President Roosevelt's speech yesterday does not appear to have caused the future that it was expected to several days ago. The Chicago Tribune comments on the speech as follows:

"There was nothing in the President's speech which was not anticipated by the average citizen. It was known that he differentiated between corporations, good and bad. On various occasions he has made it clear that the administration does not propose to attack corporate wealth because of its incorporation or because it represented money. But during the time that he has held office Theodore Roosevelt has sought the enforcement of law with all the energy and ability at his command.

"Doubtless the depreciation in listed securities is in some measure due to the activity of the administration in the prosecution of notorious violators of the law. But, as the President has pointed out, it is also attributable to conditions which are not confined to the United States. European securities are selling at low values, and the tremendous industrial development abroad as well as in the United States has withdrawn from the bourses of the world a large amount of money which hitherto has been available for speculative purposes. Outside of the situation on the New York stock exchange there is nothing to indicate that there is to be any considerable or general depression of business throughout the country.

"In many quarters there will be agreement with the President that the financial powers in New York deliberately a year ago planned to bear the market for the purpose of alarming the public and the administration. It was said six months ago that such a policy was under consideration by the high financiers of Wall street. Such a course would be fruitless. The people of the United States are in harmony with the course of the administration, and while there is no disposition to injure the innocent investor, the public is determined that big or little business shall be conducted along honest lines.

"But business has nothing to fear from Roosevelt's administration. Its purposes to defend property and the individual from the attacks of anarchists, whether they be capitalists or demagogues.

"The President's speech was temperate in tone and will be generally endorsed. The administration has put its hand to the plow, and the people do not want it to turn back from the calm and honest performance of its duty."

THE BIGGEST REPORTER
After Blaine retired from Arthur's cabinet in 1881, he devoted two or three years to writing his admirable historical review, "Twenty Years in Congress." Then, after his defeat for the presidency by Cleveland in 1884, some of Cleveland's friends made the remark, "Blaine may keep on writing history; Cleveland will now make history."

Roosevelt has both written history and made history. That is a distinction he shares, among others, with Caesar. Roosevelt's historical writings have, however, been almost entirely of other persons and times than his own. He has yet to write an account of his own most important contributions to history. Perhaps he will do this some day. What a book, for instance, Roosevelt could write concerning his own administration. It would be apt to create as much of a sensation as the administration has, which is saying a good deal. Great historical writing is simply great reporting.

It is, indeed, to be hoped that Roosevelt will be the reporter of his own administration. He has certainly provided a lot of first-class copy for the reporters in the past quarter of a century. He furnished many a column for the newspapers by his investigation of city affairs when he was a member of the state assembly. He supplied at least one "spread" head story a day during a large part of the time he was president of the police department. The Washington correspondents worked him as a mine of news when he was civil service commissioner and assistant secretary of the treasury. The war correspondent discovered in him the materials for many a picturesque feature story during his affairs with Spain. As governor of New York he created a sensation about once a week.

His greatest newspaper work has, however, been performed as President. If he has kept a scrap book during his administration, it must contain the biggest exhibit of "No. 1 heads" ever collected in the history of journalism.

The fact is that the President could easily qualify as a first-class reporter. He has the imaginative, the dramatic, and the creative faculties which constitute the highest type of the reporting ability, as they are also the essential element in literature. He has an almost unerring intuition as to when to tell a story out. That has been the secret of his success in politics. It would make his reputation in journalism. He has, however, one fault which he would have to cure if he should decide to enter the newspaper field. He would have to cultivate the art of brevity.

This sidewalk question is one which is of vital interest to the public at large. The aldermen who stood for what is right from a business standpoint should have the support of the general public who have to use those walks.

Improvements in the sidewalks on South Main street this summer have been noticeable. Another new walk is now going down in the block facing the park.

The question of lighting the city better is one that should receive due consideration. Janesville should not have a dark corner in its downtown districts and it has.

Bonaparte's action in this trust matter somewhat resembles that of his famous relative, the Great Emperor, in his dealings with conquered countries.

Why can not Rock county have a few more rural routes so that all the residents of the county can be furnished with a free delivery?

Foraker can say what he likes about Taft's speech; the public are the ones to be pleased and looked to and they are disappointed.

Janesville people enjoy music and the weekly concerts by the Imperial band have been enjoyed by hundreds.

It is safe to say that Taft's speech was read very carefully by William Jennings Bryan and E. H. Harriman.

Uncle Sam is really a strenuous man. He has conquered the Puljanes and the Apache Indians.

The Chicago gamblers are now doing business with dynamite. Cards and dice were too slow.

American voters are thinking over Taft's speech and now wait to hear from others.

Foraker remembers the day when he made all the big speeches in Columbus.

Railroads who desire that immunity bath should speak up quickly.

Denatured alcohol will help the poor potato to come into its own.

PRESS COMMENT.
The "PI" is Never Pronounced.
El Paso Herald: The names of those towns which the Moors are devastating over in the vicinity of Casa Blanca sound like a lot of pi lines.

The Real "Human Slave."
Rockford Register Gazette: "A Human Slave" is announced to be presented at the Woodstock opera house. Probably a telegraph operator in the leading role.

Tai An's Possible Motive.
Grand Rapids Herald: Tai An Han's announcement of an intention to abdicate may be for the purpose of calling forth expressions of regret from the country editors.

Suspicious, to Say the Least.
Rockford Register Gazette: Another Rockford woman is dreadfully worried about her husband. During the hard storm the other night he got up without being asked and put down the windows.

Away on Lecture Tour?
Oshkosh Northwestern: "There is no political boss in Wisconsin at present," confidently declares The Milwaukee Free Press. Must be that The Free Press knows right where to locate him.

Why Not Furnish the Answer?
Oshkosh Northwestern: The Neenah Times still sticks to its original proposition that servant girls in that city "are as numerous as blackberries in little Saunee." The Times adds, however, there is no use trying to get them to go to other places to work, for they like Neenah too well and "can't be coaxed." Too bad, too bad! We always supposed the Neenah girls were willing to listen to reason.

Only Creatures Somewhat Akin.
Milwaukee Sentinel: According to the Washington Post, "an English scientist claims to have discovered that Darwin was wrong when he said men were descended from monkeys." Now let that "scientist" read Darwin, and he can make the further discovery that Darwin didn't say it.

Well-Defined Snake-Story Belt.
Madison Journal: A three-year-old child at Hurley in a vomiting fit threw up a live lizard two inches long. Hurley is in the same latitude as Oconto and Marinette where the snake stories come from. We respectfully recommend to the newspaper correspondents in that section a change of drinks.

Hasn't Won His Spurs As Yet.
Fond du Lac Bulletin: Mayor Becker of Milwaukee may be a candidate for the republican nomination for governor next year, so says his press agent, and the press agent is supposed to have been inspired when he made the announcement. The boy mayor is undoubtedly ambitious. He ought to make good in his present field before aspiring to higher honors.

Naked Truth.
Lippincott's: An encounter of wit once took place between the late Eugene Field and a New York woman. It was at dinner and the woman was in evening dress, which was rather delectable. After a skirmish between the two relatives to the respective merits of a well known author it would seem that Field came off second best.

"Oh, Mr. Field," exclaimed the woman exultantly, "you must admit that you are fairly beaten at your own game!"

Field bowed politely and, with a smile, promptly rejoined, "At any rate, Miss Blank, I have one consolation—you can't laugh at me in my own sleeve."

The Time to Wind a Watch.
Milwaukee Free Press: A wise man—one of the wisest the Free Press knows anywhere—tells how he was taught, years ago when he had his first watch, that the time to wind it is when he is coming downstairs in the morning; to always wind it then and at no other time, and for two reasons. The first reason is that if it is wound while coming downstairs every morning it will always be wound; and the point seems to be well taken.

The other reason is that when a watch is wound the spring is strongest, and best fitted to contend with the business in hand, i. e., properly running the watch during the busy hours when it is being carried; leaving the wakening spring to run it at night when it is resting quietly, and while its owner is sleeping.

And this pointer appears to have some reason back of it also.

This is but one of many wise formulas that have been repeated by this same friend to the Free Press, to publish all of which would make one of the largest and valuable books ever printed.

Gloomy Forecast for Wisconsin Leaf.
United States Tobacco Journal: Under the influence of poor weather the appearance of the crop showed some improvement during the past week. The rains, followed by high temperature, have promoted growth and, while the plants have not attained the usual size for the time of year, yet they are coming on quietly. However, the situation as a whole is far from satisfactory. For a while the tobacco seemed to make little progress, especially the late fields, and a great deal of unevenness developed. It is thought that during the wet weather the roots did not penetrate the soil deeply but lay close to the surface so that the plants immediately began to show the effects of the dry weather that followed. Compared with other years at this date the crop shows up pretty poorly, and unless the weather of the present month and early September is of the most favorable not much is to be expected from the 1907 crop.

The Pope Failure.
Grand Rapids Herald: The Pope Manufacturing company has gone into the hands of a receiver. The disaster is due to the present stringency in the money market, but back of that as the first and chief cause is the company's financial mismanagement. The company has $100,000 common stock, $2,500,000 preferred and $4,000,000 second preferred, a total capitalization of $6,500,000. This does not mean that any such amount of money was put into the enterprise. A large proportion of the capitalization represents inflation. To carry on business it was necessary to borrow real money in large amounts. This may not be difficult in fair weather, but a concern that is depending on borrowed capital is in peril when squalls come. The Pope company was caught in the present squall with all sail set, and its capitalizing may be regarded almost as a matter of course. It is the victim of its own methods.

Presiding Elder in Pretty Pickle.
La Crosse Leader-Press: Rev. A. J. Bonjania of Milwaukee, once presiding elder of the Oshkosh district in the Wisconsin conference of the Methodist church, now secretary of the State Sunday School association, is in hot water. He is beginning to hear from subscribers and is wondering whether life is worth living. Dr. Bonjania, in addition to his other duties, is editor of The Wisconsin Christian Advocate, a paper which aspires to be the organ of Wisconsin Methodism. It is strongly prohibition in its views, devoting a large part of its editorial space to vicious and even radical prohibition utterances. In the latest issue, either intentionally or otherwise—probably otherwise—there was incorporated a recipe for a fruit cocktail, said recipe calling for "three sherry glasses of cucumber and a gill of brandy." Now the question which is stirring The Christian Advocate's subscribers is whether the doctor or whether he merely got careless in his proof reading, or if an enemy of his had sowed (as among his wheat) while he slept.

At any rate, the joke is on Dr. Bonjania. He will doubtless remember some of the strictures he passed upon Dr. Thompson, editor of The Northwestern Christian Advocate, under similar circumstances, a year or two ago. The doctor's explanation will be awaited with interest.

WHITEWATER NORMAL RANKS VERY HIGHLY

Second Highest Normal School in the State Ready for Fall Session.

For forty years past Wisconsin has been developing a system of Normal schools with a liberality which has placed our state in the front rank in the way of provision for the training of teachers. The legislature in its recent session took another forward step in the same direction by appropriating a large sum for the construction of a building for the Eighth Normal school, to be located at La Crosse. That part of the state is no doubt in need of such provision; such as this part of the state has long enjoyed through the fine institution at Whitewater.

HOLDING ANNUAL REUNION

Wife of Colonel Lyon Came Back to Each Survivor—Judge For Secretary Clerk.

About seventy survivors of the Thirteenth Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry Regiment, which served during the war of the rebellion, assembled today for their annual reunion. Known of veterans were conspicuous in the hall and on the street corners this morning and old war stories were recounted and reminiscences reported. This afternoon the regiment and a recently number of veterans from the town of Madison, Wis., met at the circuit court room and at two o'clock were called to order in the circuit court room. Captain Philip Norcross, past department commander of Wisconsin, presided in the absence of Colonel W. P. Lyon, who was unable to come here from Milwaukee, Calif., owing to the fatigue of such a long journey. The secretary's chair was occupied by W. P. Clark of Milton and another figure prominent in the meeting was Major Samuel C. Cobb of this city.

Lyon's Letters and Addresses.
Every veteran who served under Colonel W. P. Lyon received a book containing letters written by Col. Lyon to his wife during the war, addresses delivered by him in posthumous days and many interesting items from the diary of Mrs. Lyon. The book was published by Mrs. Lyon for free distribution among the men that her husband led to battle while in command of the old Thirteenth. The recipients appreciated the kindness of Mrs. Lyon in giving to them a book which brings to mind so many incidents of war times. They have always held her in highest esteem and this latest token of regard for them strengthens the bond.

Dagdo for Secretary.
Captain W. P. Clark, secretary of the regiment, was presented with a handsome badge, purchased with money raised among his comrades. It is a regulation Grand Army badge with the points of the star set in garnet. The gift is a token of appreciation for the work that Mr. Clark has done for the regiment since the war. For thirty-five years he has served as secretary and during that period his duties have many times been arduous. He has answered hundreds, if not thousands, of letters pertaining to the residence of comrades, or pension applications of regiment members, or their relatives, or upon diverse other matters connected with the organization. He has compiled lists of names and lately completed the seventh. This gives information concerning every comrade, living and dead. He has been and is a living encyclopedia upon all matters connected with the regiment and all have consulted him frequently.

A Number From a Distance.
The attendance this year is small but not small though hardly double that of last year. The negro gathering of 1906 was the result of the reunion being held during the national encampment at Minneapolis and half the regiment members were present at the national convention. A number of those here today are from other states, having moved away from Wisconsin since the war. The complete list of those present is appended:

For the last three years he has suffered from a lingering illness but was confined to his bed just one week. The patient was Mr. Sheridan spent in the south, going to Texas two years ago and to Texas and New Mexico last year. SUGAR BEET CROP IS DOING NICELY

Report That It Promises to Be the

All that can be said regarding this year's beet crop is that the present prospects show that it will probably be the best crop harvested this year.

All fields are showing a vigorous and healthy growth, and there now remains only a few acres that are not completely "laid by," and these will be finished by the end of the week.

The crop this year has been grown under adverse circumstances. To begeth with the late and cold spring retarded the growth, putting the beets in comparison with other years.

The farmers also being delayed in their work, were compelled to neglect their beets in order to give their other crops the necessary attention.

Consequently the work of thinning and hoeing was to a large extent put off until the last possible moment, but notwithstanding these delays the crop has made excellent progress and promises to be a very satisfactory one.

The hand labor furnished by the company this season has given excellent satisfaction; over two hundred Belgians and Russians have been continually at work on the large tracks, and in those cases the farmer has had no more trouble with his beets than he would have had with so much corn.

The beets in the new territory opened up this season have been very early and will give an excellent yield, the Illinois soil proving itself as well adapted to beets as that of Wisconsin, and the average grown next year will be more than doubled.

Contracts already being received daily from the outside districts.

There is no advice that can be given as to the present care of the crop, other than that the weeds and grass should be removed from all fields where it is in evidence. The best developments made in September than in any other month, and a field well cleaned up by the first of September will yield from 3 to 5 tons more per acre than if it was left untouched. Averaging year in and year out, this season will prove that sugar beets are the best paying crop a farmer can raise and from now on it will not be a question of how much can be contracted, but simply how much the factory will be able to handle.

The Rock County National Bank has just installed on the 20th Century Automatic Locking Device. This device in connection with the timers throws the bolts automatically.

The mechanism is all on the inside of the door and there are no bolts or openings on the outside. The power of the new automatic is so great that the door is forced into its seat so snugly as to become absolutely proof against high explosives or any mechanical intrusion.

Its twin vaults, one for its own use and one for safe deposit purposes, are as nearly perfect as money can make them. The vaults are constructed of plates of chrome laminated steel, built on a solid stone foundation resting on bed rock.

The outer doors weigh three tons, each one equipped with three locks. Inside these great doors are the vestibule doors guarded by combination locks and inside of these in one the money safe and in the other steel safe deposit boxes. The officers of the bank will be pleased to explain the working of the doors and this new device to any one who is interested.

Smokestacks in Italy.
In Italy every important city, except only Rome, is now surrounded with a ring of chimneys in full smoke. "The government exempts from taxation a "zone" of factories around each town. The traveler's first view of Venice as he crosses the lagoon comprises 11 smoking chimneys; the moon, seen from the lido, rises from a thickly thickened horizon; Verona has a bouquet of active chimneys near its station; Brunelleschi's dome at Florence and the quaint tower of her Palazzo Vecchio stand aloft against a horrible brown sky; the former orange gardens of Genoa are deep in dirt, grime and "fog" for the making of soap. When Rome, too, has lost her limpid horizon there is one Rome lover, at any rate, who will go there no more.
Nothing Else to Do.
Several teachers who were assigned to the city playgrounds were discussing the amusing and diversified ambitions of the tots in their charge as to what they hope to be when they "grow up." A teacher told of one little girl who in all sincerity gave her a reply that was not likely to make her vain. "Would you like to teach children when you become a young lady?" was the question. "No'm," was the emphatic reply. "What would you like to do?" persisted the teacher. "If I am pretty I'll be an actress," came the answer. "But suppose you are homely?" asked the teacher. "Well, then, of course I'll have to be a teacher," said the child.—Philadelphia Record.

S.S.S. CURES CHRONIC ULCERS

Chronic Ulcers are the result of a deeply polluted and foul blood supply. The blood is filled with impurities and germs which are being constantly fed into the place through the circulation, until all the surrounding flesh becomes diseased and the sore an obstinate and permanent trouble. Every symptom of an old ulcer suggests pollution; the discharge, the red, angry looking flesh, the inflammation and discoloration of surrounding parts, all show that the ulcer is prevented from healing by the constant drainage through it of impurities from the blood. This impure condition of the blood may be hereditary, or it may be the remains of some constitutional disease, or the absorption of the refuse of the body which has not been properly expelled through the natural channels. But whatever the cause, the blood is so weakened and polluted that it does not properly nourish and stimulate the place, and the sore cannot heal. Salves, plasters, lotions, etc., keep the sore or ulcer clean, relieve pain, and perhaps reduce inflammation, but can never permanently heal them because they do not reach the blood. S. S. S. goes down to the very fountain-head of the trouble, drives out all poisons and germs, builds up the weak, sluggish blood, gives energy and strength to the system, and by sending a fresh, healthy stream of blood to the diseased parts, allows the ulcer to heal naturally and permanently. Nothing reaches inherited taints like S. S. S. It cleanses the circulation of every trace of hereditary disease or impurity, and those who have nursed and treated an old sore for years will experience good results as soon as the system becomes influenced by S. S. S. Book on Sores and Ulcers and medical advice free to all who write.

SCIENCE ANALYSIS

The Prohibition Theory on Beers

Has been weighed in the balance and found wanting. The great scientists of all Nations after careful analysis declare that beer brewed from pure barley malt and hops contains only about 3/4 per cent of alcohol or just enough to mildly stimulate the body and promote healthy digestion. Dr. Daur, the German analyst (whose fame is international) says "Beer has a number of pleasant and valuable qualities. No other beverage contains such a combination of useful properties. The water of it quenches the thirst, the carbonic acid refreshes, the extracts are nutritious, the alcohol furthers digestion, the mineral salts build up the bones and extracts of hops act as a tonic."

Dr. Bauer's statement here given exactly describes the qualities of

Gund's Peerless Beer

Its commanding superiority over all American brews was proven at the St. Louis World's Fair where in open competition with the best America can produce it won the Gold Medal. Peerless has been brewed for over 50 years from the best Maltng barley and finest Bohemian Hops by the world-famous "Gund Natural Process" and has won its high position solely on account of unadulterated genuine honest merit. Sold at all places of public resort and generally found in the homes of our very best people. Telephone, write or call; a case will be delivered to your home at once.

CHAPTER VIII.

LADY ELIZABETH DOES NOT KNOW THE MARQUIS DE RICHEMONT.

BEFORE he could answer an order came for the prisoner to be brought forward. After ascending a flight of worn stone steps and going through a long, dark passage, a great door was thrown open at the end and he was confronted by a blaze of light which dazzled him at first, until, his eyes becoming accustomed to the illumination, he realized that he stood on the threshold of a splendid hall in the old keep, which had possibly once been the banquet hall of the castle. Long lance windows upon one side, their leaded frames filled with rich painted glass, looked out upon the sea, whose waves beating ceaselessly upon the bluff below filled the room with a subdued murmur like a strain of hushed and vibrant music, such was the elevation of the tower.

The room was massively and splendidly furnished with heavy antique furniture. The stone walls were covered with hangings of rich old tapestry from the famous looms of Arzac. Here and there were portraits of distinguished members of the Westbrooke family, women renowned for their lustrous beauty or men who, holding the castle at different times, had made their names famous by their bravery and skill. The prisoner's feet sank into a thick, soft, luxurious carpet strewn upon the stone flag of the old floor.

Writing at a large table standing near the center of the room and covered with candleabra sat a bearded old man of commanding presence dressed in a naval uniform covered with orders and stars bespeaking high rank. Further away, with her back turned to the light and to the door by which he had entered, a young woman sat, apparently reading intently. One glance at the graceful curve of her neck and the exquisite poise of her head told him it was she. Forgetful of everything else, he was about to step forward when he had it not been for the restraining hand of the sergeant.

"The prisoner, my lord," said the latter, saluting.

The admiral continued his writing a moment and then, looking up, fixed his eyes keenly upon the young man. His first glance told him that he had to deal with no ordinary prisoner. He rose at once and bowed with the courtesy of a finished gentleman.

"Have the goodness to step forward, sir, and be seated," he said, pointing to the chair. "Sergeant, remain on guard where you are."

With an equally low bow to the older man, O'Neill took a few steps in his direction and sat down on the indicated chair in front of the admiral, facing him and the woman beyond, who, still intent upon her book or lost in thought, had not yet noticed his entrance. Prisoners, in fact, being everyday occurrences at the castle in those troublous times, had ceased to interest her. Still the unusual complaisance of the old man as expressed by his voice and manner attracted her attention. She looked up from the book without turning her head and listened.

"I am sorry to subject you to any annoyance, sir," continued the admiral, "but the rules are very strict, and I must abide by my own regulations. We apprehend a descent upon our coast by the notorious pirate, John Paul Jones." O'Neill started violently and bit his lip, but said nothing—"and it is my duty to take unusual precautions," added the speaker. "I must ask your name, your station and business here."

"I am the"—said O'Neill quietly, but with his glance fixed on the powdered head showing over the chair back opposite him.

"There was a commotion at the other side of the table, Lady Elizabeth springing to her feet with a hurried exclamation, dropped her book to the floor and then turned quickly and stepped toward the other two. O'Neill and the admiral both rose at the same time.

She was on grande tenue, her hair rolled high and powdered, jewels sparkling about the snowy throat, which rose from the pale blue silk of her corsage.

"It is"—she cried.

"The Marquis de Richemont, at your service, mademoiselle," O'Neill interrupted quickly, bowing low before her, for in her surprise she would betray him.

"Good heavens, Elizabeth, what is the meaning of this? Do you know this man?" asked the admiral in great astonishment.

"Every traveler," smilingly interrupted O'Neill, striving to give Elizabeth time to collect herself, with the appearance of the greatest sangfroid himself, though his heart was beating so rapidly he could scarcely maintain his composure, "on these islands has heard of the beauty of Lady Elizabeth Howard. Her reputation as a woman of charm has even extended to the continent whence I come. It was in the hope of having the privilege of seeing her that I walked up toward the castle this evening. I have not the honor of her acquaintance, mademoiselle."

"Do you know this man, Elizabeth?" persisted the admiral sternly, his suspicions aroused by her actions.

There was evidently some mystery about his coming, and the girl was quick to see that to proclaim O'Neill's name and occupation would probably place him in an embarrassing position, to say the least. She recovered herself by a great effort and, turning languidly away, remarked with well assumed carelessness:

"Certainly not, sir. I have never heard of the Marquis de Richemont before in my life." The statement was absolutely correct, the Irishman's rank having been kept strictly in abeyance. O'Neill shrugged his shoulders and extended his hands in confirmation of her words.

"Why that cry, then, and your surprise, madam?" questioned the still unconvinced admiral.

"I know not, sir. I must have been dreaming, and the sound of a strange voice startled me."

"Beg pardon, my lord," said the sergeant, saluting. "Your worship, he asked if Lady Elizabeth Howard lived here when he was down in the courtyard."

"Silence, sirrah!" thundered the old admiral, who allowed no one to enter his double of his word but himself. "Do you mean to imply that Lady Elizabeth has knowledge of this gentleman?"

"Oh, sergeant!" said the girl, clasping her hands and looking at the old veteran with all the fascination of which she was capable.

"So, your lordship, no, sir. Of course not; certainly not, your honor," returned the man in great confusion. "I spoke by way of showing that's not he came for."

"It was in pursuance of my desire to see so great a beauty that I asked the question, mademoiselle."

"Sir, your attention does me too much honor," said Elizabeth, courteously.

"I make up for the fact that your reputation does your ladyship too little, then, mademoiselle," he answered.

"Enough of this," said the admiral impatiently. "The girl is well enough, but you didn't come here to look at her, did you?"

"On my honor as a gentleman, mademoiselle, for no other purpose."

"Well, give some account of yourself otherwise, and perhaps if it be satisfactory, as you have accomplished that purpose, I may send you on your way rejoicing," said the admiral, amused at the extravagance of the young man.

"No man could leave the presence of Lady Elizabeth Howard rejoicing, sir."

"Damnation, sir!" cried the governor testily. "Are you going to stand here and bandy compliments about all day like a French dancing master?"

"I have nothing further to urge for my words, my lord, when my excuse stands in your very presence."

The governor looked at the two young people in great perplexity.

"I fear, my dear Marquis de Richemont," said he ironically, "unless you can give some more coherent account of yourself I shall be under the painful necessity of having you locked up, in which case the only divinity you will be allowed to gaze upon will be the lovely face and figure of yonder sergeant."

"Yes, your lordship,"—exclaimed the sergeant, grinning.

"Silence, sirrah!" thundered the admiral.

"My lord," answered O'Neill, smiling, "it is very simple. I am an officer in the navy of the king of France, making a tour of England for pleasure. I came here to this town this evening. I hear of the great admiral, Lord Westbrooke, in his great castle, and the beauty of his wife, Lady Elizabeth Howard. I am a lover of the beautiful. I stand on the causeway gazing at the castle. Your soldiers arrest me and bring me here. I relate to Lord and Lady Elizabeth, and beautiful than I have dreamed." A year and a half have only intensified her charms.

"A year and a half? Dreams, sir! What mean you by that, pray? What have the years to do with the matter? Did you see her a year and a half since?" cried the admiral suspiciously again.

O'Neill started; it was a fatal slip, but he hastened to repair it as best he could.

"And where, pray, have you seen her picture?"

"In the possession of an English officer, a friend of mine whom I met at Liverpool a year and a half ago," answered O'Neill audaciously.

"And who was this English officer, pray, who displayed my picture?" interrupted Elizabeth, with an appearance of great agitation.

"Major Edward Coventry, mademoiselle."

"Oh, Edward! Why, God bless me," said the admiral fondly, "he is my son. Do you mean to tell me you are a friend of his? Why didn't you say so before?"

"I had the honor of his acquaintance," said O'Neill, bowing gravely, "on one very interesting and memorable occasion indeed, when he was on duty at the Chateau Bickenhead, I believe."

"Yes, that would be about a year and a half ago. Sir, in that case you are very welcome to this castle," said the admiral. "And now I beg leave to present you in due and proper form to my ward, Lady Elizabeth Howard, permit me to introduce to you the Marquis de Richemont."

"It is"—she cried.

"I am charmed to have the pleasure of meeting the marquis," responded the girl, smiling and courtesying deeply.

"The pleasure and the honor are mine, mademoiselle," responded O'Neill, fully entering upon the comedy of the moment.

"And," continued the admiral, "as my son, Major Edward Coventry, has sent me word he will be here shortly, you can renew your acquaintance with him."

"It was as if he had exploded a bombshell in the room."

"Edward! Coming here?" cried Elizabeth, her voice filled with terror at the unfortunate event, which she vainly endeavored to conceal. "What for? Why did you not tell me?"

"He desired to surprise you, my dear," answered the admiral, winking again at her agitation. "You know your wedding takes place next week."

"Ah, a wedding!" said O'Neill, starting and looking at Elizabeth. "Mademoiselle is then to marry?"

"Yes, your friend Major Coventry," replied the old man, "an old engagement."

"I refused to marry him for a year, and for six months more. I waited all that time. There was no word," she said slowly to O'Neill, as if each word were wrung from her by his intent look, her pale cheeks flooded with color.

"Have you taken leave of your senses, Elizabeth?" continued the admiral in great surprise. "Of what interest to a stranger is your—er—mildly only hesitation?"

"Anything which concerns so fair a lady is of deep interest to your humble servant," answered O'Neill ironically and bitterly. "The comedy had gone, tragedy, as ever, following hard upon it."

A door at the rear of the room was opened softly at this moment, and a young man in the brilliant scarlet uniform of a British officer entered and stepped lightly toward them. His glance fell first upon the speaker.

"Harry O'Neill, by heaven!" he exclaimed, springing eagerly forward with outstretched hand. "How came you here?" For a moment the young soldier was oblivious of the presence of his father and his betrothed. His untimely entrance filled the room with apprehension and dismay.

Were Thieves All Right.

Recent burglaries in the locality have spurred the constable at West Paris, Mo., to extraordinary vigilance.

The other day he took in two tramps and brought them to his office for examination. He found nothing of an intimidating nature about them, while they were in his little den, but soon after they were dismissed he ascertained that they had made off with a valuable pipe and several other small articles.

STRIKE STATEMENT ISSUED BY SMALL

REPORTS FROM SEVERAL LARGE CITIES ARE QUOTED.

GROWTH OF THE UNION

Railway Operators' Walkout May Be Precipitated by Postal's Use of Canadian Pacific Wires.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—President Small of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America Tuesday issued his first statement on the effect of his general strike order sent out last Thursday night. He gave extracts from reports that reached him from several cities and said that new members are being enrolled in large numbers.

At union headquarters and at the telegraph company offices the day was quiet. Meanwhile officials of both the Western Union and the Postal companies said that they did the biggest business Monday of any since the beginning of the strike.

Some of Small's Claims.

President Small's statement in part is as follows:

"Reports are beginning to come in from isolated points as to the manner in which the men responded to the general strike order. We could not reach them by telegraph, there being no operators at work to handle messages and our facilities over private wires are limited to terminal points out of Chicago. From west, south and east we have reports that operators and managers at small points have left their keys, locked up the offices and will remain out until officially notified to return.

"Following are extracts from letters received from out-of-town points:

"St. Louis.—Everything in line shape here. Plenty of money. Our only fear is that the boys will not go back when the strike is over. Twenty of those who went out have accepted positions with railroads.

"Cleveland, O.—Both Postal and Western Union in this city are without operators. We present a solid front and are prepared to remain out indefinitely.

Report from St. Paul Optimistic.

"St. Paul, Minn.—One hundred and four out of 106 Western Union men walked out at the signal to strike. The whole northwest is out to a man, and even if they were not a business can be handled with the wheat belt while the St. Paul office is tied up.

"Memphis, Tenn.—Both companies are down and out. We have signed contracts with every brokerage concern in this vicinity. We have similar reports from New Orleans.

"Houston, Tex.—For the second time within a year we have the Western Union tied up at this point. The Postal also out, including chief operators.

"Louisville, Ky.—We are solidly union here. The response to the general strike was unanimous.

One Man Back at Work.

"Des Moines, Ia.—A 'scab' who went to San Francisco to work for the Postal has returned to Des Moines. He is the only man working in the Postal. The Western Union is handling no business.

"Galveston, Tex.—Galveston, including the Mexican cables, are off the telegraph map. We had to bring the alien labor law into play, however, before a complete stoppage was had on the cables.

"One of the strongest indications of sentiment favorable to the continuation of the present struggle to a successful issue is the large number of new members being enrolled by the various local unions of the telegraphers' organization. It was stated at headquarters that since August 1 over 3,000 new members had been reported by local officers."

Sign Eight-Hour Day Pact.

President Small also announced that an agreement was signed Monday with the American Telephone and Telegraph company which establishes the eight-hour day throughout the company's system, and grants increases of from 10 to 15 per cent. to all telegraphers in its employ. The men did not strike.

Railway Operators May Go Out.

General Superintendent W. I. Capen of the Postal Telegraph company said that his company has resumed telegraphic communication with all points in Canada. At union headquarters it was said that if it was true it might precipitate the strike of railway operators, which is dreaded by the telegraphers. "The Canadian connections of the Postal company are over the wires of the Canadian Pacific railway. The operators of this road refused to handle commercial business from the United States because of the strike and the Postal officials have admitted up to Tuesday that their Canadian service was crippled.

Mr. Capen asserted that the officials of the Canadian Pacific road had made the necessary arrangements with its operators to resume the business. Union officials declare the railway operators will not be allowed to handle the Postal company's messages.

Fame and Human Happiness.

HOW TO MAKE AN AMMETER.

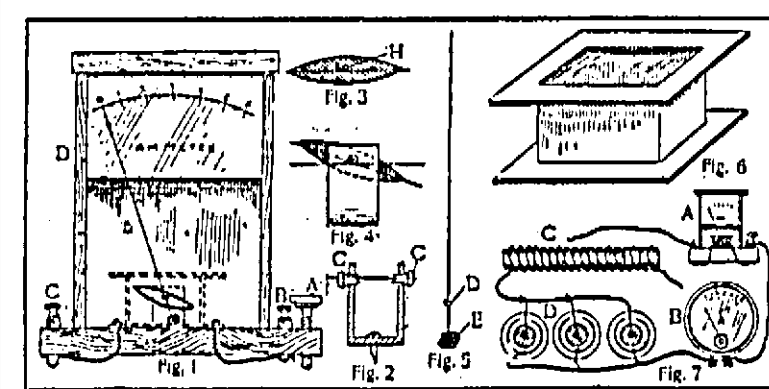

Instrument Which the Amateur Electrician Will Want.

Every amateur mechanic who performs electrical experiments will find use for an ammeter and for the benefit of those who wish to construct such an instrument the following description is given: The operative principle of this instrument is the same as that of a galvanometer, except that its working position is not confined to the magnetic meridian. This is accomplished by making the needle revolve in a vertical instead of a horizontal plane. The only adjustment necessary is that of leveling, which is accomplished by turning the

from the lower end. Solder to the short and a piece of brass, 1/2 of such weight that it will exactly balance the weight of the hand. This is slipped on the pivot and the whole thing is again placed in position in the support. If the pointer is correctly balanced it should take the position shown in Fig. 1, but if it is not exactly right a little filing will bring it near enough so that it may be corrected by the adjusting screw.

Next make a brass frame as shown in Fig. 6. This might be made of wood, although brass is better, as the eddy currents set up in a conductor surrounding a magnet tend to stop oscillation of the magnet. (The core is magnetized when a current flows through the instrument.) The brass frame is wound with magnet wire, the size depending on the number of amperes to be measured. Mine is wound with two layers of No. 14 wire, ten turns to each layer, and is about right for ordinary experiment purposes. The ends of the wire are fastened to the binding-posts, B, C, Fig. 1.

A wooden box, D, is then made and provided with a glass front. A piece of paper is pasted on a piece of thumb screw shown at A, Fig. 1, until the hand points to 0 on the scale.

First make a support, Fig. 2, by bending a piece of sheet brass to the shape indicated and tapping for the screws, C, C. These should have hollow ends, as shown, for the purpose of receiving the pivoted axle which supports the hand. The core, Fig. 3, is made of iron. It is one inch long, one-quarter inch wide and one-eighth inch thick. At a point a little above the center, drill a hole as shown at H and through this hole drive a piece of knitting needle about one-half inch long, or long enough to reach between the two screws shown in Fig. 2. The ends of this small axle should be ground pointed and should turn easily in the cavities, as the sensitiveness of the instrument depends on the ease with which this axle turns.

After assembling the core as shown in Fig. 4, it should be filed a little at one end until it assumes the position indicated. The pointer or hand, Fig. 5, is made of wire, aluminum being preferable for this purpose, although copper or steel will do. Make the wire four and one-half inches long and make a loop, D, one-half inch wood, which is then fastened in the box in such a position that the hand or pointer will be close to the paper scale. The box is five and one-half inches high, four inches wide and one and three-quarter inches deep; inside measurements. After everything is assembled put a drop of solder on the loop at D, Fig. 5, to prevent it turning on the axle.

To calibrate the instrument connect as shown in Fig. 7, where A is the home-made ammeter; B, a standard ammeter; C, a variable resistance and D a battery, consisting of three or more cells connected in multiple. Throw in enough resistance to make the standard instrument read one ohm and then put a mark on the paper scale of the instrument to be calibrated. Continue in this way with two amperes, three amperes, four amperes, etc., until the scale is full. To make a voltmeter out of this instrument, further explain Popular Mechanics, with plenty of No. 36 magnet wire instead of No. 14, or if it is desired to make an instrument for measuring both volts and amperes, use both windings and connect to two pairs of binding-posts.

Of a School That is Gone.

This is the story of a gentleman and lady of the old school: As the story opens the lady is boarding a street car. The gentleman humbly rises and offers her his seat. She falls dead. But before exclaiming she thanks him. Then he falls dead, too. So there are two of them at the inquest, and the verdict is to the effect that it is time they were passing away.—Puck.

The Eye Game.

Captivating shades are "coming in" with the liking for candle light at dinner parties. One of the prettiest shades is of white satin, embroidered with silver thread. Candle-shade games will be popular. One is called the "eye game." Every shade bears a reproduction of the eye of a distinguished man or woman, painted on mica, which lights up. Pencils and cards are passed around at dessert, and guesses as to the owners of the original eyes are written down. The diner who makes the largest number of correct guesses gets a prize.

What She Would Say.

Dr. McNamara, of London, who is investigating the cure and education of the poorer children of that city, recently was questioning a class of small girls on the daily course of the sun in the heavens. "But suppose," said he, "I told you that on a certain day I saw the sun rise in the west, what would you say?" "Please, sir," replied a little girl, "I should say you must have got up rather late!"

NO LENIENCY FOR RICH MALEFACTORS

PRESIDENT SAYS GOVERNMENT WILL PERSIST IN POLICY.

PEOPLE MUST BE RULERS

Mr. Roosevelt's Speech the Chief Feature of Cornerstone Laying of Cape Cod Pilgrims' Monument.

Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 21.—The laying of the cornerstone of the Cape Cod Pilgrims' Memorial monument here Tuesday gave President Roosevelt his first opportunity of the summer to break silence upon public questions, and the 40-minute speech which he delivered from a platform on top of Town Hill was one of vigor and directness upon matters of national importance.

The feature of his address was his advocacy of a national incorporation law and his stand in relation to violators of the law, especially corporations. With emphasis he declared that the administration would not waver in its determination "to punish certain malefactors of great wealth." Continuing he said: "There will be no change in the policy we have steadily pursued; no let up in effort to secure the honest observance of the law, for I regard this contest as one to determine who shall rule this government—the people through their governmental agents, or a few ruthless and determined men whose wealth makes them particularly formidable because they hide behind the broadworks of corporate organization."

No Vindictive Action.
The president declared that the government would undertake no action of a vindictive type, and above all no action which would inflict great or unmerited suffering upon innocent stockholders and upon the public as a whole. He said that the government's policy in its ultimate analysis meant "a healthy and prosperous expansion of the business activities of honest business men and honest corporations."

At one point President Roosevelt departed for a moment from his address as originally prepared to remark: "All that I have said as to desirable and undesirable citizens remains true."

Great Day for Cape Cod.
The day was noteworthy in the history of Cape Cod. The monument, which will rise to a height of 250 feet, will commemorate the first landing of the pilgrims on American soil, their six weeks' exploration of Cape Cod bay in search of an abiding place, and the signing of the famous compact on board the Mayflower, as she lay at anchor in this harbor.

Ten thousand people crowded into the little town had every opportunity to see the president and at least one-third of them heard his remarks. At the conclusion of the first part of the exercises on the hill, which included, besides President Roosevelt's speech, addresses by James Bryce, the British ambassador; United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, and Congressman William C. Levering, the Masonic ritual in connection with the laying of the cornerstone of the monument was carried out. J. Albert Blake, of Boston, grand master of Massachusetts, performed the ceremony and William B. Lawrence of Medford, past grand warden, made a brief address in response on behalf of the grand commandery.

Talks to Fishermen.
Following these exercises, a banquet was held in the town hall, and later the president was conducted to Old Fellows Hall, where he was introduced to more than 200 Provincetown and Gloucester fishermen. The president spoke to them commending their labors and the way in which they performed them.

At the conclusion of his remarks, President Roosevelt was driven to the wharf where he boarded the Mayflower, which sailed at 4 o'clock on her return to Oyster Bay. She was saluted by the eight warships of the North Atlantic squadron, under command of Rear Admiral Davis, which lay at anchor just outside the harbor. The Mayflower was accompanied by two torpedo boats.

It is expected that the monument will be completed in about two years.

CUBA WAS NOT KEPT CLEAN.

Report From Gov. Magoon Shows Treaty Obligations Disregarded.

Washington, Aug. 21.—The war department to-day made public a long cable report from Gov. Magoon, of Cuba, which startled the medical officers, showing as it does that in the short period since the withdrawal of the American government of intervention and the re-assumption of American government by the Cuban army of pacification, there had been a woeful neglect of sanitary precautions under which the Palma government was placed to keep the island clean and healthful so that it should no longer be a source of danger and infection to the United States and other countries. The governor's report also discloses the fact that the fever in this last outbreak has not been confined to the hospital corps men but has extended to other soldiers. He also indicates that the evil sanitary conditions cannot be cured this year, in spite of the most vigorous efforts on the part of the American authorities, in which it appears they received little support from the native Cuban physicians.

ing to discuss this question, and, while it is not ready to give out any official statement, it may be said that progress is being made.

The plan is to draft a request that this country be allowed to cooperate with the Royal and Ancient committee in future, so that both sides may be able to work together harmoniously. While the U. S. G. A. does not wish to do anything radical, it is firmly convinced that the time has arrived for action, and it is the general belief that when the foreign rule makers have the matter presented to them in its proper light everything will be satisfactory.

The generous spirit of sportsmanship and fair play which has marked the action of the German yachtsmen in providing data about the conditions at Kiel as a guide to the American skippers named to sail the sloop-class boats in the international race for the emperor's cup is cause for congratulation and particular comment.

A report which contained the information as to the trend, duration and strength of prevailing winds, depths of water along the courses, advantages to be obtained from shores and headlands, and the like, was compiled by the royal observatory at Kiel and submitted to the regatta committee of the Eastern Yacht club by Admiral Barnard.

This information was of great value to the committee in selecting the three boats named to compete. It was also of great value to the captains in tuning their little yachts up for the struggle. The German yachtsmen were plainly impressed with their reception and courteous treatment by the committee of the Eastern Yacht club when they raced in this country last year and became anxious to return the compliment fourfold, all of which tends to create good fellowship, with added pleasure in winning and no regrets at losing.

Tennis as a pastime has made giant strides in popularity in the vicinity of New York during the past few years until today no country club is complete without its courts, and the number of private clubs is rapidly increasing.

In New York, in Central park, for instance, located in what are known as the north and south meadows, there are about 200 tennis courts, all of them being of grass. The park department maintains the courts and keeps them marked out, the only requirement made of those using the grounds being that they must furnish nets, rackets and balls.

In the borough of the Bronx, New York, the general public has access to sixty-seven lawn tennis courts.

Motor Boat Relay Race.

The Illinois Valley Yacht club of Peoria will ask the cooperation of Chicago power boat clubs and that of the Illinois Yacht club of St. Louis in carrying out a motor boat relay race between Chicago and St. Louis to attempt to take a message of greeting from Mayor Huse to President Roosevelt in St. Louis Oct. 2.

The route of the race will be through the Illinois-Michigan canal, the entire length of the navigable Illinois and forty miles on the Mississippi. Illinois valley yachtsmen estimate that the trip of about 300 miles can be done within thirty-six miles.

If Chicago power boat men can navigate the canal at a rate of six or seven miles an hour, Illinois valley motor boat men will guarantee to negotiate the entire length of the Illinois at a pace of from thirteen to fifteen and under the best of conditions at a rate of twenty-one miles an hour.

MOB SHOOT INTO TELEGRAPH OFFICE

ARMED ATTACK ON POSTAL'S EMPLOYEES AT ASHFORK, ARIZ.

LIVES OF FOUR IN PERIL

Vice President Nally Notifies Federal Government and Gov. Kilbey Promises Aid in Answer to Appeal.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 21.—An armed mob attacked the office of the Postal Telegraph company at Ashfork, Ariz., early Tuesday and broke every window in the building with a rain of bullets. The lives of four of the employees were endangered, but so far as known no one was injured.

The last dispatch from Ashfork stated that arrangements were being made by the manager of the office to run a special engine to Prescott, the county seat of Yavapai county to bring the sheriff and a sufficient number of deputies to quell the riot. The shooting began at one o'clock in the morning. The Postal employees made no resistance.

Vice President Nally, of the Postal company, wired from New York that he had taken the matter up with the federal authorities at Washington.

Appeals to the Governor.
Superintendent Lewis, of this district, wired the following to Gov. Kilbey:

"Last night an armed mob attacked our office at Ashfork, shooting into the office with revolvers and endangering the lives of our employees. They threatened to renew the attack tonight. I call upon you to protect the lives of our employees and the property of the company at Ashfork. Please act promptly."

Gov. Kilbey replied that he would act immediately.

The following is the official report of Mr. Swain, one of the electrical engineers of the company at Ashfork:

"We were forewarned that there would be trouble, so about nine o'clock Monday night we barricaded the front and back doors so they could not rush us. At ten o'clock several parties turned to get in the front door. We turned all the lights out, except one over the sidewalk and another over the inside counter. There was not much going with the exception of kicking on the doors until 10:15 o'clock when we saw a man come from the direction of the Harvey house. He stopped at the front door and fired three shots. One went through a glass door in front and another through a glass door on the side. It was quiet then until 2:15 a. m. when three men fired another volley, breaking more glass.

Mob Fires Many Shots.

"At three o'clock the crowd came again and fired more than a dozen shots. The lights left burning were shot out. One of the last shots fired was aimed apparently at a cot on which Sutton, one of our men, was sleeping."

Ashfork is a small town in Arizona on the Santa Fe and is the chief "reporting" station of the Postal company between Los Angeles and the east. Five men are regularly employed, but three walked out when the strike order was given. One man has since been sent there from San Francisco to join the two operators who remained with the company.

Washington, Aug. 21.—The Norfolk & Washington Steamboat company's incoming steamer Norfolk ran aground in a fog early Tuesday in the Potomac river near Maryland Point 40 miles from this city, and up to a late hour at night had not been floated. The several hundred passengers aboard, many of them Jamestown exposition excursionists, were transferred to the steamer Jamestown and brought to the city.

Anarchists and Troops Fight.

Odessa, Aug. 21.—An encounter has taken place at Kryvolosera between a detachment of troops and a band of five anarchists. The anarchists barricaded themselves in a house and defied the soldiers to take them. They opened fire from the windows and hanged the troops at bay for 18 hours. The chief of the local police and several Cossacks were killed. Two of the anarchists lost their lives, but the others managed to get clear of the building and escaped.

VIOLINIST LOST IN ALPS

FRANCIS MACMILLAN BELIEVED TO HAVE PERISHED.

Brilliant Young American Musician Starts to Ascend Mont Blanc and Disappears.

New York, Aug. 21.—Francis Rea MacMillan, the American violinist whose genius has attracted attention both in this country and abroad, is reported in cable advices to be lost in the Alps.

A brother, Samuel E. MacMillan, who was formerly city editor of the Chicago Journal but is now a resident of this city, Tuesday received a cablegram from Marienbad, stating that Francis was lost three days ago while attempting the ascent of Mont Blanc. It was added that a party was searching for him. No further information was given in the message. A third brother, Charles MacMillan, arrived here from abroad several days ago. He said that just before sailing he had seen his brother. On that occasion Francis was in a party which included Yvette Guilbert, the French actress, the latter's husband and a Madame Van Dyk. These three, with Francis, announced their intention of ascending Mont Blanc.

The violinist is 27 years of age and a native of Marietta, O., where his father, S. M. MacMillan, was once engaged in newspaper work. Francis made his American debut in Carnegie hall, this city, on December 11 last, with the New York Symphony orchestra. Two weeks earlier he had arrived in this country after an absence of 11 years, which he had spent principally studying music in Brussels. He has the distinction of being the first American to win the annual competition at the Royal conservatory of Belgium for the highest honors in violin playing. At the time he was but 16 years of age.
